THEIR VERSION OF BOY ANAR-CHIST'S SPEECH DISPUTED.

hale of Emma Goldman's Magazine as a Crime-Girl Was Called for Trouble When Her Friend Was Arrested-Defence Will Have its Turn in Court To-day

The examination of Julius Edelson, 20 years old, his sister Rebecca, 18 years of age, Emma Goldman who looks 40, but says she isn't, and the three other young men and four young women arrested as anarchists came up in the Yorkville police court again yesterday afternoon. Edelson, who was charged with being the principal speaker at the meeting in the Manhattan Lyceum in East Fourth street, was in doubt whether to act as his own counsel or not. He was born in Russia, has studied law, went to the College of the City of New York up to last June, speaks six languages and has a knowledge of Greek and Latin. He is now teaching languages. He finally decided to let Hugh O. Pentecost act as counsel for all the prisoners.

The typewritten complaint charged Edelson with making the following speech at the meeting in the hearing of several

When I was arrested a week ago I told the police that I believed in the laws of this country as our fathers made them, but did not believe in the present institution in this country as they exist to-day and in the manner which the laws are made. First, I will explain to you what an anarchist is. This world is composed of two classes, one are the anarchists—the other class are the felons: The felons are the ones that are making the laws, and the anarchist is for peace, but not the kind of peace that the felons, the so-called capitalists, make. Now let us see whether Czolgosz was an anarchist. Czolgosz was put through the third degree by the authorities—the so-called inquisition and you can take my word for it that it was worse than any Spanish or Russian inquisition that you ever read or heard about. But with all that, he denied being an anarchist.

But by his act and deed, I say and adjudge him as an anarchist, and the people that besmirch his character or say that he was insane are liars and cowards. Czolgosz was an anarchist from that feeling of manhood in him, and he was not an anarchist of speech, but became one of us by his act. As far as we know, I would say that the capitalists have a good reason for declaring Czolgosz insane, and when they represent the fact of his insanity we have their own doctors statements that he was not insane.

The laws in this country are worse than they are in Russia, and are made for to bluff, and they bluff the people with them. Now is the time to show the fact -why a mind declared to be clear by the capitalists' own doctors, a man proven to be sane beyond a doubt, by a man in his clear senses, should commit such an act; and now is the time for to overthrow these fake ballot boxes and u ake Policeman Morris Schwartz, who understands Yiddish, testified that he listened to the speech and translated it for Roundsman Bock, who took shorthand notes. Irving Rafsky, who also understands Yiddish, took a report of the speech, and it agreed with the other report.

Schwartz said he saw in the hall Gordon and some of the other prisoners trying to sell Emma Goldman's magazine, which contained a discussion of Czolgosz and the assassination of President Mckinley. "Gordon called out to the people to buy the book, Mother Earth, as it was the only anarchist book published in the English language. It was only ten cents," the detective said.

Detective Sergeant Braun said he heard Edelson tell the audience how the owner of the hall tried to stop the meeting when he heard it was to discuss anarchy.

"I heard Edelson make his speech in which he praised Sheol Gas," went on the detective, when he was interrupted by Mr. Pentecost with:

"Who did you say?"
"Sheol Gas."
The lawyer looked puzzled and Edelson

"Who's he?" counsel inquired.
"Why the fellow that killed President
McKinley."
"The country with the unpresented of the country with th

McKinley."

"The assassin with the unpronounceable name. I don't wonder that the witness stumbled over it. I couldn't pronounce it myself." Magistrate Cornell remarked.

Counsel for the defence declared that the policeman did not correctly translate the alleged anarchistic speech made in the hall. Prompted by Edelson he had the policemen give the definition of various Yiddish words.

Schwartz went on to tell what the women

Yiddish words.

Schwartz went on to tell what the women prisoners did at the meeting.

"The Schleichter girl cried out an expression which means make trouble, when the Sweet girl was arrested," he testified. Rofsky bought one of Emma Goldman's books and Assistant District Attorney Vandiver submitted this to the Magistrate and said he thought the contents of the book would prove the woman guilty of the charge against her.

"It is important to know if the police have correctly translated the speech of

"It is important to know if the police have correctly translated the speech of this Edelson. The whole case rests on that," observed the Court.

Young Edelson at this point wanted to take up the cross-examination of the policemen to show how much Yiddish they knew. The Court ruled that he had selected counsel and must abide by the selection. The policemen said Emma Goldman had nodded approval over Edelson's speech and reapproval over Edelson's speech and re-fused to leave the hall when ordered to deso. The other girls had revisted the police.

The hearing was adjourned until Monday, when the defence will begin.

THE PISTOL WENT OFF. Van Campf, Who May Die, Says Gnelding Was Footing With It.

HACKENSACK, N. J., Nov. 2.-Robert Van Campf, 18 years old, who is a telegraph operator in the Susquehanna and Western Railroad station at Ridgefield Park, was shot in the back and probably fatally wounded this afternoon by Theodore Gneiding, a messenger and hack driver, who also is 18 years old. The bullet passed through the operator's body and was found just under the flesh near the floating ribs and removed. Van Campf says Gneiding was fooling with a loaded revolver which he found in the drawer.

"I ordered him to put it down, but the moment my back was turned there was a loud report and I realized I was shot."

Gneiding denies he handled the revolver or took it from the drawer. He says he saw it on the table and just pushed it further back, thinking it was going to fall. Gneiding seems simple minded. He was committed to the Hackensack jail to await the result of Van Campf's injuries. Railroad station at Ridgefield Park, was

CHILD KILLED BY AUTOMOBILE. Picked Up by the Owner of the Car and Hurried to Hospital.

Alice Carter, 7 years old, whose home was in Washington street, Flushing, was run over and fatally injured yesterday afternoon by an automobile at the corner of Main and Washington streets. The of Main and Washington streets. The child was crossing Main street when an automobile driven by Ralph O. Peckworth, a building contractor, of 415 Hudson street, Manhatian, came cown Main street at a rather fast gait. There is a down grade at that place and Peckworth was unable to check the machine in time to prevent it from hitting the little girl.

The wheels passed over her body and she lay unconscious on the ground. Peckworth stopped at once and getting out of the auto he ploked up the child and placed her in the car. Then he drove as fast as possible to the Flushing Hospital. It was found that the child was injured internally, and she died about two hours ternally, and she died about two hours after she was admitted.

Peckworth, who is 28 years old, was arrested and taken before Magistrate Connorton, who paroled him for a hearing

Heart Disease at Hotel Wroxeter. Leaning against the wall of her room, with one arm thrown over the telephone, Miss Catherine Williams, a handsome woman about 35 years old, was found dead yesterday morning at the Hotel Wroxeter, 139 West Forty-fifth street. She had been talking with a friend, Miss Minnie Stoffer, of 134 West Eighty-fourth street, and had just made an appointment to accompany her to Danbury, Conn., on a business trip. After a few minutes conversation Miss Stoffer was unable to get a reply to her questions and decided that the receiver had been hung up at the other and. Shortly after a package was delivered for Miss Williams, and Louis Deceise, the clerk, took it up to her room, but could get no answer when he rang the bell. He returned to the office, where it was noticed that the signal for Miss Williams's telephone was ness regularly. Miss Williams owned a hotel in Danbury and it was her intention to go there with Miss Stoffer last night to see her manager.
